

Locavorganic

A locally-grown experience for Juniors, Cadettes, Seniors, and Ambassadors!

Monday June 1st, 2015 4-6:30pm

Have you ever asked yourself...

- I wonder where my food comes from?
- Is it possible to grow fruits & vegetables in the high desert?
- What does it take to run a farm?
- What's a locavore and how do I become one?
- Organic...what's that?
- How is science involved in my food?

Visit a working farm in the Antelope Valley that features certified organic produce. Girls will learn what it takes to run a small business, how to grow plants in a challenging environment, and why being a locavore is a great idea.

Girls can satisfy requirements for Gardener, Eating for Beauty, Locavore, and Dinner Party badges as well as the Sow What Journey by attending this program.

Date: 6/1/15 4-6:30pm
Location: Holland Ranch, Palmdale
Cost: $15/girl, $5/adult
Includes: Fun patch, snack

REGISTRATION INFORMATION:

Register at www.girlscoutsla.org

Questions? Please contact Christine Colvin (626) 677-2369

ccolvin@girlscoutsla.org

STEM + Art = STEAM Power!